English translation by DeepL:

The multi-instrumentalist Alexandre Cellier will have his first concert in Sofia on December 1.

The son of the founder of the "Mystery of The Bulgarian Voices" Marcel Cellier will perform with two Bulgarian musicians, the organizers say.

The musician, composer and performer will perform in the completely renovated BIAD Chamber Hall. Cellier Jr. will demonstrate his skills on various instruments such as piano, Celtic flutes, fujara, pan flute, kalimba, harmonica, duduk, ukulele, jaw harp, clarinet, as well as on rose leaf, and water tuba. Special participants in the event are Bulgarian musicians Hristina Beleva (Gadulka) and Kostadin Genchev (kaval).

Alexandre Cellier was born in Lausanne, in the family of the famous Swiss Marcel Cellier, discoverer of the magic of our folklore and author of a series of radio broadcasts that gave the choir its name "The Mystery of The Bulgarian Voices". Alexander grew up in an environment colored by the traditional and gypsy music his parents discovered in Eastern Europe. He was fourteen when he fell in love with jazz piano and improvisation thanks to François Lindemann and continued his studies at the Lausanne Conservatory with Christian Favre. Since 1982 he has played in various formations and composed for dance, theatre, narrative and cinema.

He undertook several trips to Africa, Brazil, the Caribbean, Louisiana and Eastern Europe. Out of this passion of his was born a book-CD about percussion and the musical life of Burkina Faso. From Trinidad he brought back a steel pan, which he integrates into his compositions and improvisations.

Alexandre Cellier often performs with Jean Duperrex, a multi-instrumentalist. Their collaboration is captured on two of the 17 CDs of original recordings that A. Cellier has released, Voyage au bout des notes and Opus 2004, a live recording at L'Esprit Frappeur.

Cellier, Jr. has developed various projects with musicians such as Ion Miu, Gábor Barta, Maria de la Paz, William Fierro, Aurélie Tropez, Evan Christopher, Jeanne, Gollut, Antoine Auberson, Ulrich Herkenhoff, André-Daniel Meylan, Yillian Canizares et Cyril Regamey... / DD
